Thai Poly Acrylic Public Company Limited

Energy Conservation Policy

Thai Poly Acrylic Public Company Limited began establishing its energy management function in 1985. Due to increasing economic competition and rising energy costs, which significantly impact production costs and the Company's profitability, the Company initiated compliance with the Energy Conservation Promotion Act in 2010. An energy management team was appointed to systematically control, monitor, and continuously implement energy conservation measures.

Therefore, the Company has established this Energy Conservation Policy to serve as a guideline for energy management and to promote efficient energy utilization and maximum benefit. The Company shall implement the following measures:

The Company shall support and promote energy management and the use of alternative energy by ensuring efficient energy utilization, minimizing losses, and complying with applicable laws and related requirements.

The Company shall continuously improve the efficiency of energy usage within the organization in alignment with business operations, applied technologies, and working environments.

The Company shall establish annual energy conservation plans and targets and communicate them to all employees to ensure proper understanding and implementation.

The Company shall encourage participation from management and employees in energy management by providing training, building awareness, and ensuring compliance with established guidelines.

The Company shall provide necessary resources, including budget, personnel, time, and tools, to ensure effective implementation of energy conservation activities.

Management and the energy management team shall regularly review and improve the energy policy, objectives, and implementation plans on an ongoing basis.
